

Sara Maya

The Visual Singer

When she was 9, Sara began to get singing lessons, a passion that will soon turn into a profession. In fact Sara spent the school years between books and live concerts. After a degree in foreign languages she moved to Milan where she specialized in Jazz and Opera.

Still very young she is invited to audition for TV programs which bring the first turn in her career. In fact she will be appearing in several National TV programs, both in RAI and MEDIASET which made her quite popular throughout the country.

In 2001 she achieves the diploma of Actress at the School of "Piccolo Teatro" in Milan founded by George Strehler, the most prestigious theatre school in Europe.

As an actress she headlines in the operetta "Il Paese dei Campanelli" ("The Country of the Bells") and in the musical Grease where she plays the role of Sandy.

In 2002 she joins the illusion show of Erix Logan. They will get married afterwards and now she splits her performing time inside magic boxes and colourful concert stages enriching the magical illusions with the power of her voice and song ranging from international pop to Opera.

Recently she has added to her bag of talents an act of Quick Change by singing the hits of several worldwide countries in their original language, changing the traditional costumes at lightning speed.

